

Instructions for student participants

Within a week of your registration, you will receive a confirmation email from us, matching you with your teammates and your graduate student mentor.

After receiving confirmation of your registration, you and your teammates will receive an email from a graduate student volunteer within one week. This graduate student will serve as your mentor and offer their professional knowledge and expertise to help you design your project. Your team will meet with your mentor in 3-4 recurring meetings during lunch time or virtually to design your project.

By December 9th, the deadline for project design submission, your team should send your project designs to this email address: boc.wisc@gmail.com

Finally, your team will work during the week of December 12th to bake the project to be presented on December 16th!

Graduate student mentors will meet with students regularly and offer your professional knowledge and experience in helping the participants design a baking project. You will be matched with a group of high school student participants (your mentees) based on your area of expertise, the student participants' areas of interest, and the availability of you and the student participants. During the month of November and early December, you will meet with your group of mentees for 3-4 weekly meetings, where you will share your knowledge and expertise with the students to inspire them to come up with a baking project. More detailed meeting guidelines can be found in meeting guidelines for graduate student mentors.

Per university guidelines on working with younger students, please make sure that you are cc'ing the teachers and parents on all communications with your mentees.

On the final event date (December 16th), you are also invited to attend the presentation and be with your mentees as they show off their hard work!
